Burrows Cave - The Celtiberian Connection

M-G is a believer in BC

Hi Jim and friends of the M.E.S.,

Here is something that can interest Burrows Cave enthusiasts.

The Sun Wheel symbol found everywhere is also found in Celtiberic Art.

How could a hypothetical hoaxer of Russell Borrows' entourage be aware of this detail?

Hello, im chad Lasseter i found a few artifacts that no experts can place so far. I live in on the ohio river. Among the items the anchor is the most profound. Im gonna send u a few pics & if u can tell me what u think it is it wud b greatley apriciated.

Hi Chad, Looking on the internet, I would judge its an anchor from a stern paddle-wheel Ohio river boat circa 1800 - look in below link:

And you have the link that attached the chain to the anchor. Nice find. See the 1800.jpg picture from the link. I'm circulating this among our group for opinions.

The Garlo Well Temple and Tholos Structural Mechanics

The corbelled structures at the end of the article look like they could have been made at Mystery Hill. The author thinks it was the Sea People. Some of them could have gone to New Hampshire. Tom

http://www.minoanatlantis.com/Garlo_Tholos.php

Who were the Sea People? has been discussed and debated "forever." Their earliest depiction is probably the paintings inside the Egyptian tombs. Speculation has ranged from Phoenicians, to Atlantians, etc. The author seems to assume that they were Sardinians, but I don't know how widespread is the acceptance of that view. Can anyone on this list shed any light on that? I've seen the Mystery Hill (America's Stonehenge) up-close several times, and these look slightly different to me—but, that doesn't mean they weren't built by the same people, or people in touch with those people. I was surprised by his tone that seemed to think it was amazing that people could travel all the way from Sardinia to Bulgaria in ancient times. Yet, some believe the Phoenicians circumnavigated Africa and they apparently went to Britain. Ancient maps show what looks like Ireland and Iceland. Why would going to Bulgaria be a long voyage?

Jack Burgess

I suspect that these so called "sea people" may be the ancient advanced civilization referenced in Graham Hancock's "Fingerprints of the Gods". See my review in the Feb 2013 Newsletter. Since they may have built the Giza pyramids, their depiction inside Egyptian tombs is not surprising.

The Origin of the Sea Peoples

Jim ,I think this is an interesting take on the Sea Peoples, I don't know how to send it to everyone but send it if you think it's a good idea. See you tomorrow. Tom

new find = Aztec TLAZOLTEOTL

Hi Steve,

Looks like the Aztec goddess TLAZOLTEOTL. Ask the explorers if they have also found obsidian (traded north from the Valley of Mexico) artifacts or polychrome ceramics. If so, try to photograph them (with a ruler for scale) as well so that they can be documented.

Vance

TLAZOLTEOTL GIVING BIRTH (Ceremonial statue, aplite speckled with garnets, 15th Century, Mexico)

This little item was brought to my attention last week by two explorers that had been hunting arrowheads down around the Beaver Dam Mountains on the Nevada Utah border. This items was discovered under an over hang in those rugged mountains. Never have we seen a artifact like this in that area. I'm going down to St. George next Saturday to take a closer look at it and see if its possible to go to the discovery site.

Got it at a garage sale 5 years ago - I just love all the detail - but have no idea what this is?

do you think these objects are fossils?

Jim,

Can you pass this around so we can get some feed back on this item. Thanks.

From Steve

File dscn

Definitely fossil; not sure what it is though.

Scott Wolter

Hi Steve,

Interesting piece. I would be happy to ask for an opinion of the research staff of the Yale Peabody Museum if you could provide the following:

- 1) What is the general location (State & County) of the specimen?
- 2) Could you re-photograph it next to a (preferably metric scale) ruler?

Regards,

Vance

Without some scale, it is difficult to determine the size of the fossil which may aid in determining what it could be. Due to the symmetry, it looks like we are looking at a cross section through the fossil. It also appears to be only part of a larger fossil or parts of a fossil due to the weathering of the fossil and the rock matrix. Perhaps looking at a cross section through a skull or maybe two vertebrae.

Hope this helps.
